Stamps.

The following are what are known as India ink proofs, and this set purchased at our June sale is the only complete set of U. S. postage stamps of this class ever offered at auction. Owing to a recent Post Office decision, collectors cannot, in the future, procure specimens of the Official, Periodical or Postage Stamps, from the Department, and they must of necessity soon become very rare. The India ink proofs were only used to exchange for similar sets of foreign countries, and are of excessive rarity. The special rarity of the higher values of the State Department and Periodical Stamps is too well known to need calling attention to. All are beautiful proofs in right colors, and if a starting bid of $60 is made, they will be sold as a lot:
